The pony colt had arrived less than 24 hours earlier at the Art Hase farm near Stevensville where the mother Shetland is stabled. ## Dropping Of Saints Causes Confusion, Disappointment

By GERALD MILLER

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI's action in cutting dozens of saints from the Roman Catholic calendar and downgrading dozens of others is causing widespread confusion and disappointment.

The action was taken on the recommendation of a majority of the Church's bishops and is another step designed to reflect the international image of the Church in the modern world.

In his decree Friday the Pope removed from the calendar saints whose existence the Church considers in doubt. He reduced the number of saints to whom veneration by all Roman Catholics is due and placed other saints in a category that makes veneration of them optional.

NOT ABOLISHED

Saints removed include St. Christopher, patron saint of travelers. Under the new ruling Catholics who want to continue venerating him may do so since he hasn't been abolished as a saint. But there is no longer a saints day for him or the others cut from the calendar, and no Catholic can be officially asked to venerate them.

St. George, the patron saint of England, St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, St. Nicholas, whose name is associated with Santa Claus, and many others continue to be regarded by the Church as historical figures who existed, and who are saints in good standing.

Because their importance is deemed more associated with local areas and not to the Catholic world as a whole, however, they are now on the optional list.

This means, for example, that in Ireland it is permissible for the hierarchy to require Catholics to honor St. Patrick March 17 with prayers, while Catholics in other countries may ignore him.

The new calendar reduces the number of saints with a mandatory day for Churchwide veneration to 58, plus the 12 apostles, the archangels Gabriel, Michael and Raphael, and St. Joseph and St. Mary.

The calendar revision was recommended by a two-thirds majority of the nearly 3,500 bishops who attended the 1962-65 Vatican Ecumenical Council.

They noted that over the centuries saints days had become more and more numerous. They recommended that many feast days of the saints "should be left to be celebrated by a particular church or nation or religious community," adding that "only those should be extended to the universal Church which commemorate saints who are truly of universal significance."

It was on the recommendation that Pope Paul acted. There is no definitive way of saying how many saints there are in the Church. Until the 10th century there was no such process as canonization, or the formal recognition by a Pope of sainthood.

Countless persons from the early centuries of Christianity were considered saints because of martyrdom. Martyrs are considered saints because of dying for their faith, and no miracles need be associated with them.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE PROTESTORS GIVEN STIFF JAIL TERMS

He Wants Senate Prepared

'Disaster Plan' Would Handle Takeover Try

LANSING (AP)—The chairman of the Senate committee investigating campus disorders called Friday for a "disaster plan" to handle any attempt by protesters to take over the Senate chamber.

Sen. Robert Huber, R-Troy, cited a recent takeover of the Colorado Senate and said a check with legislative leaders showed Michigan had no plan of defense if it happened here.

If the "great unwashed" tried a similar demonstration in Michigan, he said, "we certainly ought to know exactly what we're going to do."

Huber revealed the disaster plan proposal during a news conference on action of his committee during its four months of work.

NO WITCH HUNT

The interim report—billed as an attempt to allay fears of those who believed "the Legislature is fiddling while the state's higher education system is burning"—included a promise that the committee would not engage in "witchhunting or McCarthyism" as critics had suggested.

A "key point" in the investigation, Huber said, would be a check into the possibility of subversiveness on campuses.

"There are some subversive elements operating on campuses," said committee member George Kuhn, R-Birmingham.

Asked if that information were outlined in a State Police briefing to a closed committee session, Huber said:

"I'm not in a position to discuss the State Police report. . . we must respect the confidence that has been expressed to us."

"We haven't proved anything yet," Huber added.

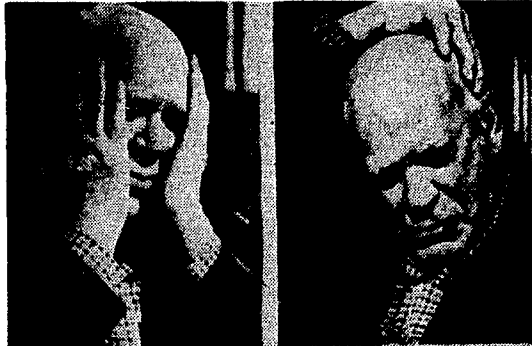

The committee was moving "very cautiously, very slowly to see that what we do is within the boundaries of the United States and state constitutions," he said.

"I have nothing earthshaking to tell you. We're beginning to

Distinctive Commotion

A prowler made a distinctive commotion at a Benton township home last night, Charles McKie, Jr., 202 Wells avenue, reported to township police that it sounded like someone had thrown a cat against his house.

VIEWS OF HIS VIEWS: While appearing before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee in Washington Friday, Eric Hoffer, longshoreman turned author, presented his views on disorders in cities and on campuses. Hoffer, his hands in constant motion, told the group that demands of college militants cannot be satisfied. He testified "they have tasted blood and acquired a taste for academic flesh. They want to kill it." (AP Wirephoto)

Ryan Rebuts Claim Of Parochial Deal

Dissident Dems Say He's Not Supporting Party

LANSING (AP)—Girding for the coming floor fight over parochial aid and the public school budget, House leaders Friday got in their last practice swings by replying to intraparty charges of an "understanding" with Republican Gov. William Milliken.

House Speaker William Ryan, D-Detroit, called "illogical" the suggestion by one Democratic faction that he and others in leadership resign because of failure to support the official party opposition to parochial aid.

Ryan, chief backer of a parochial aid bill, rebutted charges by Al Fishman, chairman of the New Democratic Coalition, made a deal with the Milliken Administration to ensure acceptance of parochial aid in exchange for a school budget within the governor's guidelines.

"No one party has the votes for new revenue" necessary to raise the school appropriation, Ryan said. "We will be back in the fall and cooperate in efforts to raise it."

'BAD LOGIC'

As to the charge he should resign his post, Ryan said Fishman's "logic is bad there, too. You can't logically ask a statutory officeholder to quit when people elect him to decide what is or is not good law."

Ryan and his floor leader, George F. Montgomery, D-Detroit, notified legislators the

Hoffer Says Kill A Few

Violence, Fire Fills Week At New York

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A week of tumult and shouting on the college scene has ended on a quieter note with scholars and politicians discussing the campus crisis and a New Hampshire judge dealing jail terms to 45 Dartmouth sit-ins.

The shock of Dr. Buell C. Gallagher's resignation as president of City College of New York and a steady day-long rain combined to end two days of violence and arson at the 20,000-student school.

At Howard University, where police wrested control from sit-ins by firing tear gas rockets into the buildings, the student activists told a news conference there was no change in their demands.

LEARN PRISON ROUTINE

In Woodville, N.H., 45 young people, most of them Dartmouth students, were learning prison routine today at the Grafton County Jail while lawyers prepared appeals to the state Supreme Court.

Judge Martin Loughlin sentenced the group including five girls to serve 30-day jail terms and pay $100 fines each for criminal contempt in the seizure of the college administration building last Tuesday.

The demonstration led by the Students for a Democratic Society was to demand the immediate expulsion of ROTC programs from the campus. They were removed from the building by state police early Wednesday.

Judge Laughlin's sentence was twice the 15-day term recommended by County Atty. George Papademas and was the stiffest mass sentence yet meted out for student uprisings across the nation.

One advocate of the get-tough approach to campus disorders testified before the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee.

HE'S 21 NOW

Police Are A Little Late

St. Joseph police were 75 minutes too late to make an arrest for minor in possession of intoxicants. A Benton township youth was released early today after establishing that he had turned 21 at midnight. Three other minors were charged.

Sen. Griffin Says His Life Was Threatened

Concerns Fortas Criticisms

DETROIT (AP)—Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., appeared at a news conference Friday night under police protection after what he said was a telephoned threat on his life because of his criticisms of Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas.

Griffin declined to give details of the threat, except that it concerned the Fortas criticisms and was received by his Detroit office in a telephone call Wednesday.

A number of policemen in plainclothes guarded the senator who was in Detroit to attend a Republican dinner.

BLOCKED NOMINATION

Griffin last fall led a successful fight to block nomination of Fortas as chief justice of the Supreme Court.

This week he joined U. S. Rep. Robert A. Taft, Jr., R-Ohio, in introducing a bill to require federal judges to disclose their outside income.

The bill came after a stir in Congress over a Life Magazine story that Fortas accepted a $20,000 fee from the Wolfson Family Foundation connected with Louis Wolfson, financier who currently is serving a prison term for dealing in unregistered securities. Griffin returned the $20,000 11 months after receiving it, saying he was unable to perform the civil rights advisory work for which the fee was to have been paid.

'MORE EVIDENCE'

Griffin told newsmen, "I indicated several days ago, in response to a direct question, that there was more incriminating information which might come" in regard to the Fortas case. "Since then, my office in Detroit tells me that my life has been threatened," Griffin said.

The senator, referring again to his remark about "more incriminating information which might come," said he wanted it known that "I'm not the only person in possession of that information."

Toby And Duke

Slug It Out

C.A. (Toby) Tobias, Jr., a member of the St. Joseph city commission and its mayor pro-tem, and W. H. (Duke) Ehrenberg, a fellow commissioner and mayor took to the print and broadcast media to air differing philosophies on local government.

There's no particularly visible collision in their being service station competitors, just the width of Pleasant street apart to be exact, but their views from the city hall level have a way of being transmitted on different wave lengths.

Monday night Toby lost a round in the sidewalk hassle previously reported in our news columns and in this corner.

The following night Duke told a meeting of local government officials, at a Chamber of Commerce sponsored dinner, there ought to be some means of getting more mileage from the tax dollar for public safety (police and fire protection).

His Honor noted there are four police chiefs and four fire chiefs in the Twin City area, and went on to say there must be a more efficient method for providing those services.

Duke was clear to say he wasn't talking about putting everything together right at this moment, but if the two cities could operate jointly an airport, a sanitary landfill and a sewage disposal plant, then extending the idea further could stand exploring.

Yesterday Toby exclaimed Duke might discuss things first with his constituents and his fellow commissioners before issuing blanket recommendations on how to run the total area.

He applied the words, ludicrous and folly, to Duke's suggestion.

Duke's remarks possibly may come as somewhat of a surprise to many people outside the city hall menage, but he is propounding nothing completely new or secret.

Correlating certain functions in the individual police departments has been advocated for quite some time by many officers in those units.

A centralized records and identification bureau, probably under the sheriff's direct supervision, is one such thought. A single radio system is another.

Two years ago a civil rights riot on Fair avenue, the dividing line between Benton Harbor and Benton Township, brought home the peril in divided authority in the face of an emergency.

The local agencies, that is, the St. Joseph, Benton Harbor, Benton Township and Sheriff's police, had manpower equal to the force opposed to them; but the riot maintained momentum because the chain of command split in four directions.

When the State Police arrived and by agreement were given the sole command function, the outburst quickly lost its steam.

This lesson has not gone unobserved and a local command system is now in effect if future emergencies arise.

The fire departments in both cities for years have worked in tandem. More recently this has embraced the Benton Township department and if the St. Joseph Township volunteer department were confronted by a major disaster, it is reasonable to assume the other three units would respond; and the reverse would hold true.

Just a few months ago, St. Joseph Township to some extent puts in law enforcement under the Sheriff's control. By contract the Sheriff furnishes and trains the manpower required for Township work. The Township pays a fee for the service and supplies necessary equipment specified by the Sheriff. These officers are deputy sheriffs and can be summoned for emergency calls outside their customary duty rounds in the Township.

His Honor's remarks are not so radical as Toby would make them out.

The trend to correlation already is under way.

Duke, as we see it, is simply speculating on the possibility of carrying the process to a logical conclusion.

It makes sense at least to apply the unified concept to police protection.

Crime is no respecter of political boundaries. It is rising at such a rate that the economics and the tactical disadvantage of fighting it by separated forces gives the crook all the breaks against the citizenry wherever the latter may reside.

The fire hazard is still more localized than the crime impact. Yet on this front the difference is in degree, not in kind.

Duke is tracking right on this question.

Geological

Discovery

A small boat drilling holes in the floor of the Atlantic ocean has brought to the surface evidence which seems to have conclusively decided a lingering controversy over how continents and mountains are formed.

The expedition, a project of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, appeared to confirm through fossil specimens a theory that the continents are situated on plates of the earth's surface which move several inches a year.

As these plates collide with one another, it is theorized, they cause fractures on the surface which may result in mountains, volcanoes, earthquakes or other natural phenomena. This is an interesting development to come from fossils millions of years old.

Speling Reform

A hardy perennial among Ideas That Never Come to Anything is the plea for reform in English spelling. Reform advocates, who have included some mighty names in their camp, claim phonetic English would produce more benefits than a cancer cure.

It must be assumed that these characters mean well, but spelling reform has as much chance as a jackass in the Kentucky Derby. One reform, of course, would be dropping silent letters, but the reformers forget that the silent letters somtimes performs a vital function. How wud on distinguish the metal "led" from the verb "led," for instance? It is said some leters have up to eit pronounciations; reform spelling would limit ech leter to on.

But what wud we do for intermediat vowel sounds? We wud be trading our present trubls for new ons.

Besides the obvious objections of immense cost, semantic confusion and general chaos which Newspeak would cause, consider the richness of the English language. But why go on?

If it is considered advisable to reduce the language of Shakespeare, Swift, Melville, Whitman, Poe, Emerson, Wolfe and Mencken to the facile but graceless lingo of Petroleum V. Nasby, spelling reform is just what we need.

Speak American

Never underestimate the ingenuity of government in dispensing government funds. The United States Office of Education has decreed Cherokee to be a "foreign" language in order to legalize a $7.5 million grant to teach English to Indian pupils.

Though tribal elders may be surprised at this description of their ancient tongue, the grant itself is beyond reproach. How can these foreigners hope to achieve full and meaningful participation in this nation's life if they don't learn to speak American?

BLOSSOM FESTIVAL

GOES BACK 80 YEARS

—10 Years Ago—
The 26th Blossom festival, most magnificent of them all, really had its birth over 80 years ago. The first seed for this spectacular tribute to the fruit belt was dropped over 80 years ago by J.H. Graham, of the Graham and Morton Steamship line. He was so moved by the sight of the orchards in bloom—a spectacle in all its glory!—that he conceived the idea of Blossom Sunday. This was the forerunner of this past week's festival, culminated yesterday with the Blossom parade.

The first official Blossom Sunday was declared in 1906, when the Rev. W.J. Cady of the First Congregational church of Benton Harbor, urged all to accompany excursions through the budding orchards.

Thus the war in the west has swung in a full cycle, reversing the position of May 10, 1940, when the Germans, supreme in the air and on the ground, sent their legions crashing into Belgium and the Netherlands in the all-conquering blitzkrieg which led quickly to Dunkerque and the collapse of France.

EDITOR'S MAILBAG

Editor,
The Herald-Press:

PASTOR IS SHAKEN UP

I am writing to express my outrage at the way I was treated at the Berrien county jail.

I am an ordained minister of an Assembly of God Church in Michigan City, Ind. I was asked to visit a lady who is presently in the jail for murder.

When I went into the jail, I was asked to prove that I was an ordained minister, at which time I showed my ordination card from my wallet. The deputy never even handed the card back to me, but flipped it at me with his finger, and it ended up on the floor.

He then proceeded to go and get the matron of the jail, and she said, via the deputy, she must see my credentials. Then I said that it seemed highly irregular, since I had displayed them once; however, I gave the card to him again to take to the matron.

She came down and proceeded to give me the fifth degree, stating that my credentials did not state that I was a pastor of a church. I objected strongly as an ordained minister has access to jails or prisons whether they are pastors of a church or not. She continued to be very nasty and tried to refuse me entrance to see this lady.

I finally stated strongly that they could not hinder my rights to see a person who had requested to see a pastor while in jail. Reluctantly, she led me to a little area where I could talk to this lady, through a little opening in a wall. It was hardly the proper way to carry on a conversation with, or give spiritual guidance to a prisoner.

While standing, talking to her, as best I could, a lieutenant came up to me and said he understood that I was giving them a rough time. He too, asked to see my credentials, and I refused to give them to him. At this time he threatened me by saying, quote, "If you give us anymore trouble, we will see you in here."

I am wondering what is being run in the sheriff's office, a Gestapo agency? I have been in teen work in New York City, New Jersey, and also in Indiana, including the Indiana state penitentiary. I have never been treated like this before in my life!

Maybe it is time for a change in the sheriff's office in Berrien county, if they carry this much authority in dealing with the public who is trying to help people work out their spiritual problems.

Sincerely,
REV. REGINALD
A. YAKE, PASTOR,
Assembly of God
Church,
Michigan City, Ind.

(Ed. note. We asked Edward Sanders, the undersheriff, who's been in police work around here quite a few years, about this complaint. He says it is a routine security measure to check the credentials of all official callers at the jail if the latter are not personally known to the sheriff's personnel on duty at the time. A number of lay persons' flashing ministerial cards have slipped in to visit inmates, he added. While not personally familiar with Rev. Yake's experience, Sanders says it is possible this particular security check was on the zealous side).

One of the most distressing aspects of severe allergy occurs when it is found that a person is sensitive only to house dust. Unfortunately, there is no area in large cities or even in the farm country without house dust and air pollution.

Recently, the British Tuberculosis Association did a highly controlled study on the value of desensitizing a group of patients with commercially prepared house dust in an effort to learn its effect on asthma. Almost a hundred asthma patients were chosen, all of whom were having a primary house dust problem.

Half of these patients were given gradually increasing injections of the commercial house dust preparation, while the other half were not given the injections.

The conclusion arrived at was "No significant difference could be discerned in the results between those treated with house dust and the control group."

This finding may account for the fact that so much disappointment occurs in people who anticipate a permanent cure or control of asthma by long periods of desensitization with house dust alone. Specialists in allergy valiantly try to track down other offending substances that may play a larger role in the production of asthma.

Asthma is a complex disease that can be treated effectively when combined groups of physicians contribute their knowledge in many fields to reduce the severity and the frequency of asthmatic attacks.

The neurological disease that struck one of America's favorite human beings, Lou Gehrig, is known as amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. This disease, A.L.S., is one of a large group of disorders that affects the muscles and the nerves that activate them. The disease occurs more frequently in men and usually starts past the age of forty. Little is known of the disease and perhaps less is known about how to interrupt its progression.

Now a new drug which was widely used for another reason, a mitriptyline hydrochloride, seems to be able to stop the advance of this severely progressive neurological disease. It is arousing a great deal of enthusiasm in those research workers who are using it on selected patients.

The drug was originally tried on patients who were severely depressed and who were under observation as severe neurotics and psychotics.

At Yale University and at the University of Florida, Dr. Peter S. Mueller and Dr. Donald T. Quick have combined their researchers and are using the new drug for A.L.S. with more than expected success. The general feeling of their report is that the work deserves to be further investigated because the disease was so definitely kept from advancing at its usual rate in some cases.

Opening lead — king of spades.

In general, the purpose of the hold-up play by declarer is to sever communication between the adverse hands. Thus, if you study the spade holding in this hand, it becomes obvious that if South refuses to win the K-J when they are led, and then takes the jack, he succeeds in preventing West from ever scoring the eight.

However, the problem of when or how long to hold up cannot be solved by applying a flat rule. Declarer must also apply good judgment in deciding when to invoke the hold-up play. Used incorrectly, the holdup may prove to be a handicap instead of an advantage.

Take this where West leads the king of spades. South should duck because West may well have the K-Q-J-x and it is essential to exhaust East of spades to protect against this possibility.

But South should take the ace when West continues with the queen. There is no longer a valid reason for holding up the ace, for if West has four spades the contract can be nailed down by taking the queen and leading a diamond, while if West has five spades the hold-up is absolutely pointless. This is because, if West has five spades and the ace of diamonds, the contract simply cannot be made.

The trouble with ducking the queen of spades is that West may now take it into his head to abandon the suit after winning the K-Q. He might decide to shift to clubs by leading the jack and, once he did this, the jig would be up.

The point is that the hold-up play should be employed for only a valid purpose, and it should not be used merely because the opportunity exists. It should be promptly abandoned whenever there is a serious danger of attack elsewhere.

Do you think politicians' set speeches today leave something to be desired? Sometimes these meandering words actually capture a straggling thought and bear it triumphantly, a prisoner in their midst, until it dies of servitude and overwork."

Maybe the picture you have in your mind of the kind of writer who goes in for sports reporting will undergo a slight change if you glance through Arlot and Daley's new book, Pageantry of Sport. For here you will find, of all people, William Wordsworth glorifying ice skating, Izaak Walton rhapsodizing over fishing, Novelist Henry Fielding on hunting, Diarist Samuel Pepys describing a hot tennis match, and Mark Twain giving a vivid description of a mule race in New Orleans!

He's Back From Year In Vietnam

Airman Tells Of Frustrations In Fighting War

By ORVIN JOHNSON
Staff Writer

When John C. Oliver, 36, came home early last Sunday morning, he was met with a sign that extended from wall to wall in his living room. It read "Welcome Home Dad."

For Oliver, a staff sergeant whose job is materiel control in the U.S. Air Force, it was his first time home after 12 months in Vietnam.

His wife, Ova, a native of Benton Harbor, and their sons, John, Jr., 7, and Roderic, 5, have been living at 992 Buss avenue. They will be moving next week to California where Sgt. Oliver will be assigned to Vandenberg Air Force base.

The stateside duty means that separation for the family is over, at least for the time being.

LOT NOT SO BAD

In talking about the year just past, Oliver is quick to mention that his lot in Vietnam was not so bad as most. His assignment to the 37th Tactical Flight Wing at Phu Cat, just inland from the South China Sea, was, in his words, "fortunate."

His work there involved getting parts replacement for the jet fighters. He acted as liaison between the plane crew and supply. Having served 18 years already, Oliver is planning to make the Air Force his career. Relaxing in the "stateside" comfort of his home, Oliver is still troubled by what he's seen in Vietnam.

"We are winning," he says, "but not going all out." By the time he left, things had slowed considerably from the pace that he found when he arrived a year ago. He recalls that the day after he got there, his base was hit by enemy rockets — only the third time this had happened. But progress is slow, and somehow, he feels, we must use more effectively the men and equipment already committed.

SHARES FRUSTRATION

Oliver shares with other GI's the frustration that comes from being unable to fight "the way we want to fight." He recalls

What Did Blacks Win In Fracas?

Rep. Mittan
Says Townsfolk
Hot At Lansing

LANSING — A resolution threatening to withhold appropriations for Michigan State university for the 1969-70 fiscal year gained a growing list of signers among state legislators Friday in the capitol.

Originated by Rep. Joseph P. Swallow, R-Alpena, the proposed resolution asked that the MSU administration disclose the full terms of an agreement with a small band of black students who seized a dormitory cafeteria last week.

HEARING FAIR?

It also asked the college administration to show a fair hearing was extended to two white cafeteria supervisors who were demoted as result of the settlement terms, and asked for an indication from the majority of the student body of its feelings on "violent and unlawful activities which disrupt the orderly process of the university."

The proposed resolution said the signers "individually and collectively agree to refuse to approve any appropriations to be made to Michigan State university for the 1969-1970 fiscal year" until such time as the requests made of the administrators are substantially complied with.

Rep. Ray Mittan, R-Benton Harbor, said he was one of 35 representatives who added their signatures to the proposal within several hours after Rep. Swallow began circulating it Friday morning. He added that he felt it would get more than the 50 signatures required to bypass normal committee action and go directly to the floor for consideration next week.

TOWNSPEOPLE ANGRY

Mittan said the apparent "capitulation" of the MSU administration to illegal seizure of a university building had enraged the surrounding communities of Lansing and East Lansing.

He reported a group of East Lansing businessmen were so incensed they marched to a campus entrance and there laid a wreath in commemoration "of the death of the university administration."

Jury Sets Value At $65,000

A Berrien circuit jury ended a three-day condemnation trial Friday with a unanimous $65,000 award to Switzer Real Estate Corp. of Benton Harbor and two individuals for a parcel at 195 Michigan street, Benton Harbor, in the city's urban renewal plan.

Besides the Switzer firm, award winners are Sabara B. Enders and Edward C. Scott as individuals and as trustees of the estate of Neal H. Enders.

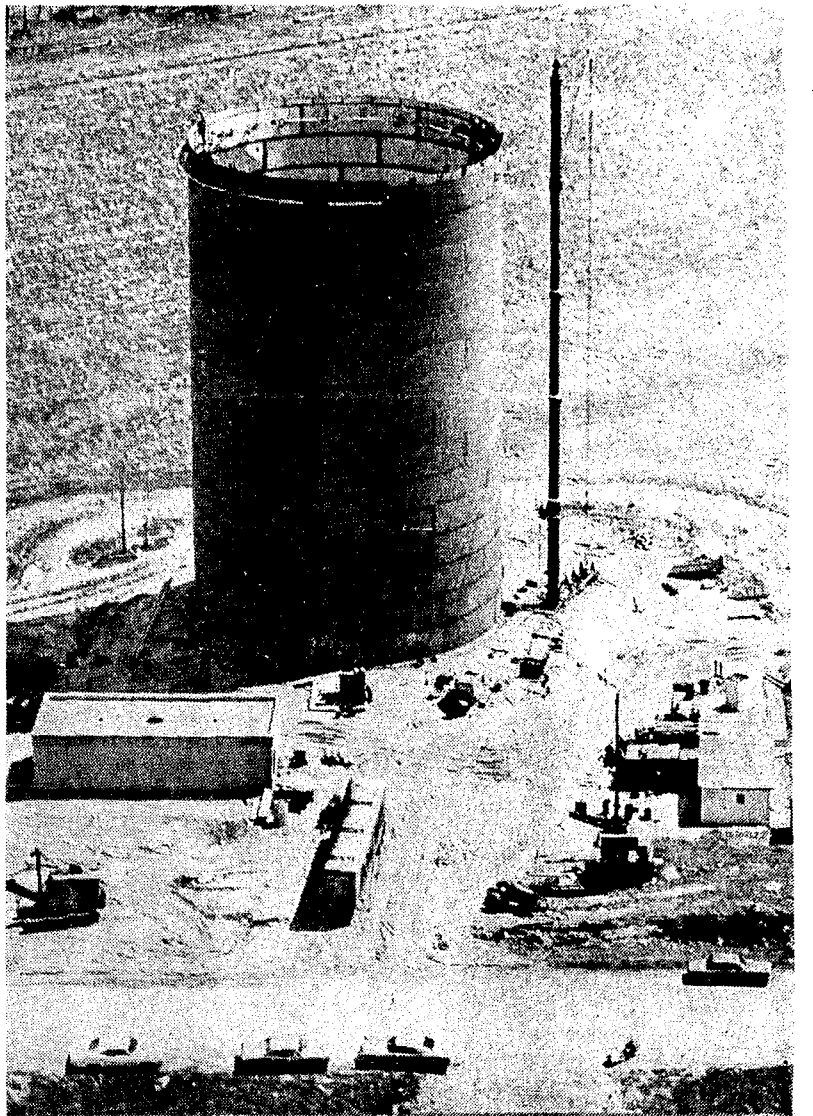

Attorneys for the city and defendants said portions of a building at 195 Michigan street will be razed in an urban renewal plan to build a street beside the building.

Appraisers had set the value of the loss at a low of $39,000 and high of $110,000, from which jurors chose the award after one hour and 21 minutes of deliberation.

Trial was held in the court of Judge Chester J. Byrns. City's counsel were Atty. Samuel Henderson and Joseph Killian. Defendants were represented by Atty. John Crow.

KILLED IN ACTION

AROUND OUR TOWNS

Folder Brings Back Lake Ship Memories

DAILY passenger boats to and from Chicago, bringing thousands to spend a day or the week on the shores of Lake Michigan.

This statement was in a pamphlet published by the Chambers of Commerce of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph in the mid-1920s to lure visitors and new residents to the Twin Cities.

The pamphlet was found by Charles P. Rouse, 83, custodian of the Veterans Memorial hall, 415 Lake Boulevard, St. Joseph.

Rouse, a member of American Legion Post 163, found it in an old piano stool compartment in the hall.

The brochure contains 35 photos of the Twin Cities area advertising "Silver Beach," the "House of David Park," the "Blossom Parade," "Benton Harbor Fruit Market," and the "Sandy Shores of Lake Michigan" as places "...one should not miss while visiting the Twin Cities."

TOWNS AS ONE

The opening paragraph of the promotional pamphlet read, "The business centers of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph being but little more than one mile apart, the two towns are as one. The street connecting them is a wide pavement thickly built up with factories and business places, as well as ship docks for many small craft, and for the two larger boat lines, the Graham and Morton Line operating five steel steamers and the Benton Transit Co., with two steamers, give the towns all-year freight service, and passenger service during all but the winter months." The pamphlet also boasted that the Twin Cities had 35 miles of paved streets and a summer population which averaged over 60,000.

Secretaries of the Chambers of Commerce at that time were J.H. Pound of Benton Harbor and Ray W. Davis of St. Joseph. The Twin Cities had separate Chambers of Commerce until the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce was formed in the 1950s.

PREPARING CHILDREN FOR SCHOOL

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles on preparing children for kindergarten. The articles were written by four Benton Harbor district kindergarten teachers — Mrs. Shirley Hill, Mrs. Dorothy Smith, Mrs. Fran Kuschel and Mrs. Lorraine Hadlow. The material applies to parents and children in all school districts.

We realize that all parents are anxious to help their children become well adjusted to school situations. Therefore, the following list of helpful hints has been prepared for parents whose children will be attending kindergarten.

1. Talk about school frequently with your child. Help him to think of school as a happy experience.

2. Teach your child independence and self-reliance. He should feel secure in his ability to do things for himself without mother there. Show him the way to school or to the bus for the first few days, then let him come alone or with other children.

3. Your child should know his name and address well enough to repeat it to others when necessary.

4. Your child should be able to talk plain enough so that he can be understood and will be able to relate any experience which he wishes to share.

5. Your child should be taught to care for his own wraps, to put them on and to take them off with very little help. Clothing should be roomy and easily fastened and unfastened.

6. Each article of your child's outer clothing should be labeled with his full name, especially in rubbers and boots.

7. Your child should be independent in removing and putting on shoes and tying shoe laces.

8. When your child comes to school the first day — be sure to prepare him so that you can leave him at the door. Build his confidence.

9. Help your child become more aware of the world about him. Provide books, pictures, stories and your attention as often as possible.

10. Let nothing interfere with his routine of twelve hours sleep, a substantial breakfast, and a happy start for school

Should Strikers
Lose Jobs?Teachers, Bosses
Don't Agree

From Associated Press
Education administrators in Dowagiac and Grand Rapids agree generally, but not wholeheartedly, with a proposal that striking school teachers should lose their tenure and their teaching certificates.

But the teachers' union top executives in the two communities, as could be expected, oppose the proposal. Public schools in both cities were closed down by week-long teacher strikes in April.

James F. O'Neil, a member of the State Board of Education, made the suggestion, saying striking teachers should be penalized "since they have ignored their moral responsibility to adhere to the law."

Dr. Norman Weinheimer, superintendent of Grand Rapids public schools, says "I think that's an oversimplification of the problem."

NOT EFFECTIVE

"This kind of a thing was in effect prior to Law 79, and it was not an effective tool. I think probably that some sort of arbitration which would involve a large cross-section of people or have more than one fact finder the answer. One factfinder was often subject to the whims of individuals."

(Dr. Weinheimer formerly was superintendent of Brandywine schools, Niles township.)
George Comden, business manager for Dowagiac public schools, suggests, "There should be some sort of penalty for breaking the law. A law without a penalty is a toothless law."

"I think tenure is probably the one that would have to be hit first. It is really the teachers' guarantee of a job. They know that no matter how long they are out on strike, there is a job waiting."

Meanwhile, David Thompson, executive director of the Grand Rapids Education Association, says, "I think ultimately there will be some action by the Legislature to set up some kind of binding arbitration where an independent third party will make a decision."

'AT BOARD'S MERCY'

"Unless there is some kind of decision-making process or a strike, a teachers' organization is held at the mercy of the school board," Thompson added.

Raymond Staples, president of the Dowagiac Education Association, says, "It sounds like O'Neil is interested in a penalty but not a solution. If he had a solution, I would be interested in hearing it."

"If boards won't negotiate how can we solve it? I don't particularly approve of a strike, but at times you don't have any choice. It's either break the law and strike or go back to work like sheep."
